Good evening,

Just want to give you all the tone from the NCRCC tonight.

OPS was severely understaffed today and it appears to be continuing into tonight. 50 OPS officers down in comparison to last night. They are not doing any targeted enforcement.

I have just communicated with the OPS NCRCC members, and the direction to their teams on the road is that PO safety is the biggest concern so not to put themselves into situations where a large back up presence would be required in order to assist.

OPS are telling their members to still challenge those carrying fuel jugs into the red zone if appropriate/possible, but not to push it to the point of confrontation if there isn't immediate backup/support...which it appears there is not tonight anywhere tonight.

If our members are left alone due to their OPS partners being involved in an arrest and subsequent processing, my thought is if they do not have adequate resources to perform their assigned duty/post, they should pull back to a safer position where they can still see their post in order to still be able to observe and report.

RCMP Ops Section Chief tonight:

Cacchione 1830-2000

Jacob 2000-0600

Poiré 0600 tomorrow

Regards,

Chris
